"GOODBYE" FLASHED FROM BURNING STEAMER

Business Houses Close For Murray Funeral

CITY OFFICIALS TO ATTEND SERVICES AT ST. ANN CHURCH DURING SATURDAY

Exact Hour of Funeral Will Be Decided During The Day

LARGE ROLL OF BILLS IS REPORTED MISSING

No Money Found On Body According To Information Reaching Here

Announcement was made this morning that the funeral for the late Dr. W. M. Murray will be held Saturday morning at St. Ann's Catholic Church, with the interment at the city cemetery. Mayor W. A. Britain has requested that all business houses close during the funeral, the exact hour of which will be announced later. The city officials intend to attend the funeral in a body, and a number of clubs and societies have signified a similar intention.

Dr. Murray served the city as Mayor for the term of 1897-98.

John Murray, of Dublin, Canada, a brother of the deceased, is expected to reach Albany some time Friday. According to Dr. J. L. Gunter, full arrangements for the funeral are being made, but that final plans await the arrival of John Murray. A notable expression of the love and esteem felt for the dead physician was the great gathering last night of his former neighbors, both of Decatur and Albany, at the Nashville accommodation, which train brought home the lifeless body of the beloved citizen.

Medical examination of the body of Dr. Murray, revealed that a large abrasion was noticeable on the right side of his forehead. Also it was noticed that his left jaw bone was broken, as was his chin bone. Dr. Murray is known to have had in his possession a bill folder, when he took the train north Tuesday afternoon, containing $250 in bills. No money was found by the authorities when his body was examined, after it was picked up two miles south of Columbia, on Wednesday morning, it was stated here today.

The Columbia Herald of yesterday contains the following:

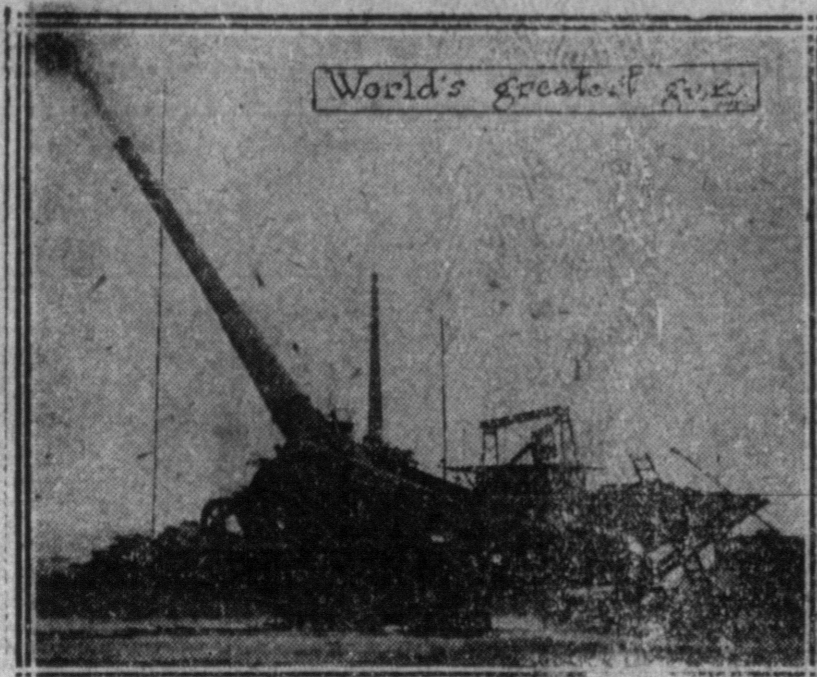

The lifeless body of Dr. M. W. Murray, aged about 65, and one of the most prominent physicians of Albany, Ala., was found after an all night search at an early hour this morning about two miles north of Columbia on the Louisville & Nashville right of way by Joe Inman, a member of the section crew.

It is supposed that Dr. Murray, who was en route to Nashville in company with his wife, fell from train No. 2 which passes Columbia at 6:10 o'clock p. m.

Dr. Murray was not missed by his wife, it is said, until the train neared Nashville, where a search was instituted for him, but he could not be found on the train and his wife called officials of the railroad and officers along the line and offered a reward for his recovery.

Section men on motor cars worked from Brentwood to Columbia and from about Pulaski to Columbia in search of the missing man, and this search was rewarded this morning by the discovery of the mutilated

MORGAN EXHIBITS PRIZE WINNERS AT THE ALABAMA FAIR

The farming interests of Morgan County were well represented at the state fair at Birmingham, according to Hugh Ballew, who had charge of the general exhibit of this county.

Mr. Ballew has returned from Birmingham where he settled up all the business connected with the Morgan exhibit. He stated that citizens of the county won approximately $1,000 in prizes at the fair.

Morgan won third place for the best county exhibit. The best individual exhibit, which carried a prize of $400 was won by L. J. Hill, who lives near Hartselle.

"This county had the best cotton at the fair," said Mr. Ballew. "We did not enter what we had for a prize as there was no department we could put it under. We had a hundred cotton stalks in exhibit that carried over a hundred bolls each. One stalk had 170 odd bolls on it."

"Morgan was certainly 'round here,' or 'on the map,' or what ever you call it, during the state fair."

Frank J. Keele Dead At Seattle

Word has been received here of the death in Seattle, Wash., of Frank J. Keele, son of Mrs. M. J. Hart, of Decatur, and a brother of Mrs. J. D. Sharpe, also of Decatur. Mr. Keele died in a Seattle hospital following an operation, interment being made in Seattle.

body at Cedar Grove, two miles south of this place, between Columbia and Glendale. Mr. Inman flagged train No. 6 and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Oakes & Nichols where it was prepared for burial.

It is said that Dr. Murray was en route to Nashville for the purpose of having his eyes treated, and at the time his body was discovered he had a black flap over one of them, and this may have been responsible for his fall from the moving train.

Immediately after the body was brought to Columbia telephonic communication was established with Mrs. Murray in Nashville, who arrived to take charge of the body at 10 o'clock this morning. It will be shipped back to Albany this afternoon for interment.

SEIZURE OF SHIPS CARRYING LIQUOR NOT YET PLANNED

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Although Attorney General Daugherty holds that his last interpretation of the Volstead act gives prohibition agents authority to seize vessels carrying liquor within the three mile limit, it was announced at the treasury department today that the government has no intention of taking possession of foreign ships which violate the law.

Following conferences with Secretary of State Hughes and a review of the international aspects of the new enforcement problem, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has decided that the United States will content itself with seizing the liquor found on ships of foreign registry and will leave the ships alone.

Seizure only will be resorted to, it was stated, when flagrant violations of the prohibition act make criminal prosecution necessary against the master of the offending vessel.

Attorney General Daugherty and Solicitor General Beck this afternoon were awaiting the appearance at the department of justice of attorneys for the Anchor and Cunard (British) steamship lines. The attorneys are expecting to consult with government officials relative to expediting to the supreme court the suit they have filed in New York to set aside the Daugherty injunction by enjoining the treasury department from carrying it into effect.

FRICTION OCCURS IN MURDER PROBE AND STATE POLICE HAVE OWN INVESTIGATION

Troopers Begin Separate Search For Slayer of Rector and Singer

BURNED AUTOMOBILE MUST BE EXPLAINED

Actions of Vestryman On Night Of Killing Are Being Checked

(Associated Press.) NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Frances Hall, widow of the slain rector, was brought back into the limelight by investigators of the Hall-Mills murder, when detectives visited her home and took away a scarf and fawn colored coat which she recently had dyed by a Philadelphia firm.

(By International News Service) SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 12.—The confession in which he accused his chum, Clifford Hayes, of having killed Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, was entirely false, Raymond Schneider, declared in jail here today. The retraction was made in the presence of a number of witnesses.

(International News Service.) NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 12.—Evidence of friction between the state police and the Somerset and Middlesex County authorities developed today in the investigation of the murders of Rev. Edward Hall and his beautiful choir leader, Mrs. James Mills.

The state police began a separate investigation independent of that of county and municipal authorities. It is said to involve more persons, all related to the victims—three men and a woman.

New evidence has come to light in the finding of a blood stained potato knife and the remains of a burned automobile.

The knife, which is in the possession of Chief of Police O'Connell, was found 150 feet from the spot where the bodies of Dr. Hall and his beautiful companion were discovered on the deserted Phillips farm on Sept. 16. The authorities believe the red spot on the knife was made by human blood and not rust, as at first thought.

The theory of the police is that this knife may have been used to cut Mrs. Mills' throat. The stains are to be chemically analyzed.

The burned automobile may prove to be important evidence or may turn out to be the result of a coincidence. It was the property of Ralph Gorsline, vestryman of the church of St. John's, the Evangelist. He is the man who said that Mrs. Mills tried to win his affections some time ago and whose movements on the night of the murder are involved in the routine investigation.

Gorsline was prominent in church affairs. On the night that Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were killed, he had taken Miss Katherine Rasgall, a member of the choir, to her home in his automobile.

VESSEL AFIRE TWO DAYS OFF PACIFIC COAST

(By International News Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—"Goodbye to all!"

This message, flashed by radio operator Parks to the radio corporation station here at 10:12 signalized that all aboard the City of Honolulu, which is burning two days off the Pacific coast had departed the stricken vessel.

Eleven minutes afterwards this message was received: "All left but Captain Lester, Chief Officer, Chief Engineer and myself."

The one hundred or more passengers on board and the 192 officers and men had started to leave the vessel at 9:03.

All the vessels on the run between Honolulu and San Pedro are making for the rescue with the Steamer Enterprise in the lead.

(Associated Press.) SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Radio calls to the burning steamer Honolulu at 9:50 were unanswered. At 9 o'clock the wireless said the lifeboats had been lowered and a very bad fire raged.

POWER COMPANY RENEWS ITS CONTRACT FOR SHOALS PLANTS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary of War Weeks announced today that he had renewed for a period of one year the contract which the Alabama Power Company has to use the government's steam plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

The contract was renewed under the present terms, which provided for the payment of $10,000 rent a month and two mills additional for each kilowatt of power developed, which brings the total payment to about $200,000 a year.

The Alabama Power company now is furnishing electric current for power and other purposes to many cities in the Tennessee river district near Muscle Shoals.

(Associated Press.) DETROIT, Oct. 12.—Renewal of the lease of Muscle Shoals will not effect the Ford bid, officials of the Ford company declared today.

ORLEANS ATTORNEY IS IN ATLANTA YET TO CONSIDER LEGAL STEPS TO BE TAKEN

Georgia City Does Not Doubt Case Will Go Into The Courts

SYMPATHY FOR BOTH IS HEARD IN THE CITY

Asa Candler Called "Loneliest Man in The World" By One Woman

(By International News Service.) ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—Indications were today that in the near future a damage suit, asking for a staggering sum, will be filed by attorneys for Mrs. Onesima de Bouchelle against Asa Candler, who often has been referred to as "the richest man in the South."

Attorneys for the New Orleans beauty, who Tuesday announced her engagement to the aged millionaire had been broken because of reflections on her character, announced today that Mrs. de Bouchelle would return tonight to New Orleans, but that Harry Gamble, of New Orleans, her personal attorney, will remain here to consider legal steps.

It is not doubted that these legal steps will carry the sensational affair, which so far has been conducted by means of statements, into the courts.

There is considerable sympathy manifested in Atlanta for both Mrs. de Bouchelle and Asa Candler. It is felt that the Candler family is responsible for the wreck of the "June and November" romance and not the aged financier himself.

A woman who met him yesterday on the streets described him as "the loneliest man in the world."

Prominent Atlantans are going to be given a chance, Harry Gamble, attorney for Mrs. de Bouchelle, said today, to explain statements they are said to have made to the effect that the Candler-de Bouchelle union not only was unfortunate but impossible.

"I have information," Gamble said, "that business leaders, not related to the Candlers except possibly financially, took a very active part in the final decision of Asa G. Candler to balk at the marriage to which he was strongly urged by the promptings of his heart."

Gamble said he believes this act was taken in good faith, but that he believes the minds of these men had been poisoned against Mrs. de Bouchelle.

"I am going to find out," he continued, "from what source they received their information. They may say that it was given in confidence and they can't discuss the identity of their informants. Well and good. It so happens that the courts do not recognize these confidences."

CAT, IN CHURCH ORGAN, SCARED OUT AS TURNS ON FORTISSIMO

(By International News Service)

DANVILLE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Rev. A. E. Mackle, of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, was delivering a mighty good sermon. He was working well toward the climax and his voice thundered forth. The subject was "The Least in the Kingdom."

Just then a big cat sneaked into the church, hid in the pipe organ and a minute later let out a powerful y-e-o-o-w which put the ministers voice to shame. A couple of minutes later, just as the parson was getting warmed up again, the cat began howling. Then Rev. Mackle announced: "Either that cat must go or I shall dismiss the congregation."

The threat had no effect on the cat, according to those present. The organist had better luck when she sounded the deepest bass note of the organ. It was fortissimo all right. The organist put all the wind at her command in that note. With a frightened howl the cat scampered out of the organ and jumped through the nearest open window.

CAR SHORTAGE IS HALTING BUSINESS

(By International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Shortage of railroad transportation is so great and serious that it is not only limiting, but will continue to limit production and commerce of all kinds, said Samuel O. Dunn, editor of The Railway Age, at the annual convention of Associated Business Papers here.

Almost every other condition is favorable to an increase in production and commerce and a revival of prosperity, he said.

WISDOM

If character be rooted in truth the flower and fruit thereof will be beautiful.

No method or discipline can supersede the necessity of being forever on the alert.

Do not despair of your life. You have force enough to overcome your obstacles.

The only pleasant things to pay are compliments. They are the only things we can truly pay.

Follow your genius closely enough and it will not fail to show you a fresh prospect every hour.

Two eyes, two ears and one tongue prove that we were intended to hear and see more than we speak.

Are we not always in youth as long as we face heaven? We may always live in the morning of our days.

A man has his life work to live for—it is that which makes a man strong and resolute—he has a vocation.

True eloquence consists in saying the right thing in the right way at the right time and the right place.

The man who feels that life is not worth while has usually neglected all the things in life that are worth while.

Misunderstanding goes on like a fallen stitch in a stocking, which in the beginning might have been taken up by a needle.

A friend is one who incessantly pays us the compliment of expecting from us all the virtues, and who can appreciate them in us.

Show men unlimited faith as the coin with which you will deal with them and they will invariably exhibit the best wares they have.

The first key which opens the door of success is the trailing instinct, the knowledge and sense of the real value of any article.

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away.

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. When the little one arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse. We had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

Confession Fails Clear Hall-Mills Murders

Pearl Bahmer & Raymond Schneider

Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, wealthy pastor of the fashionable Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. Eleanor Rheinhardt Mills, his choir leader, of New Brunswick, N. J., were killed by mistake for Pearl Bahmer, a fifteen-year-old school girl, and her stepfather, Nicholas Bahmer, a saloon keeper, according to the confession of Raymond Schneider, who alleges Clifford Hayes, nineteen, did the killing. Schneider says he, Hayes and Leo Kaufman followed Pearl and her stepfather to the lonely farm where the murders occurred and that Hayes, who was in love with the girl and jealous of her stepfather, slew the minister and Mrs. Mills by mistake in the dark.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT The Patterns of Words

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THERE he was in the theatre—the man with the saw.

Just an old-fashioned, sharp-toothed saw, such as your grandfather, used when he was getting out the kindling for the winter's use, and he took a fiddle bow—the man in the theatre—bent the saw and played upon it and made sweet, clear notes like the voice of a good violin, and everybody wondered and the theatre rocked with applause.

"Strange," said the elderly man who sat with me.

"I warrant you can't guess where my mind is this minute?"

"No," I said. "Who can guess anything about the thoughts of an Irishman?"

"Well," said the man who sat next to me. "I'll tell you. I'm not in America at all, nor in a theatre either. I'm back in Ireland at school with a lot of Omadhawns like myself, and the professor in physics has a saw in his hand, and he's sprinkling on the saw a handful of glistening white sand from the shore where the waves are so blue. See, he takes up the fiddle bow and begins to play.

A Strange Tale

"Hark, how sweet the music! Why, it's like the finest violin! Look, the silver sand is disturbed by the vibration. See, it falls to the floor—why, it makes a pattern, something like one of those beautiful mosaics you get in Florence when you take a walk over the old bridge and pause to patronize one of the merchants within its arches.

"Look, there is a new pattern on the floor, it's like a rose, isn't it, with a spray of leaves around it? Listen, that was a discord—ugh! What a shriek!"

"There, it's exactly as the old professor said—when the note is harmonious the sand falls in a beautiful pattern. When it is a discord, there is no pattern at all. Strange, isn't it?"

"Very strange," said I.

And we sat back again in our seats—the man next to me and I—watched two girls do a really amazing dance and laughed at the patter man, and wept a little shamefacedly at a bit of rather cheap sentiment, and then we went home and forgot about it all.

But this morning I am thinking about it again—the strange tale the man who sat near me in the theatre told about the saw and the fiddle bow and the silver sand.

I suppose it is a true story, for I know the man to be a truthful man, but—what does it all mean?

Is there some great rule of life which we poor, stupid human beings cannot even try to comprehend—a rule which joins together somehow, some way, all that is beautiful and true, and makes it all a part of a great and glorious plan?

A sweet note brings a beautiful pattern in the sand. A discord makes a mess of it.

Do We Draw Patterns?

Do we draw patterns somewhere with every word we speak, even with every thought we think?

Are you and I just little tiny, insignificant parts of a great perfect mechanism, the working of which we cannot hope even partially to understand?

What a big world it is, and how full it is crammed with fascinating interest!

I'm glad the man who sat beside me in the theatre told me about the saw and the sand.

Somehow it has set me to thinking.

Football Squad Meets President

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The football team of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute of Auburn, en route to West Point to battle the Army cadets on the gridiron Saturday, was received today by President Harding at the White House.

GRID MENU FINE FOR FRIDAY; BOTH HIGH TEAMS PLAY

Friday's gridiron menu for local football fans is splendid. Both the local high school teams take on worthy opponents, Decatur playing the strong Morgan County High School squad on the local field while Albany meets Coffee High in Florence.

The game here brings together teams, one of which has not been seen in action here this year. Morgan County has one of her usually fast and hefty squads this season. Decatur, on the other hand, has been making steady improvement in her play since the season opened and Coach King's cohorts are declared to be fully 50 per cent stronger than they were in the Florence encounter. The game will be called promptly at 4 o'clock.

In Florence, the Golden machine will be followed by the anxious eyes of a number of local fans who were planning to make the trip. Albany is expected to win, but no one doubts that Florence will scrap for every inch.

Ginning Report For County Made

From the Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census at Washington the information is conveyed that there were 3,985 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, ginned in Morgan County, from the crop of 1922, as compared with 4,502 bales ginned to September 25, 1921.

"IN 1492, COLUMBUS CROSSED THE OCEAN BLUE"

Four hundred and twenty years ago Columbus sailed out of the old world, seeking an all water route to India—but he found a new world and thereby immortalized his name. As far as personal heroism goes, considering the hardships this discoverer and those faithful to him endured on their wonderful trip—had he missed America and sailed on an open sea to the East Indies, his name should have been written high in the hall of fame. For did he not "sail on and sail on," despite discouragements that would have defeated a less dauntless man? Was he not threatened with death by a mutinous crew unless he consented to return to Spain? The following is one of the many historic biographies of Christopher Columbus. "He was born at Vo near Genoa, Italy, about 1446 (He was consequently 46 when he discovered America in 1492) and died at Valladolid, Spain, in 1506. His parents were wool combers, yet he was given a fair education. At the age of 15 he began his life upon the sea. He engaged in some of the fights between the ships of the rival cities of Genoa and Venice. When at sea he employed his time in making maps and charts and in reading every thing that related to navigation that came within his reach. He died in poverty. His body was removed from Valladolid to Seville, where it rested until about 1541 when it was carried to Santo Domingo, Hayti, and interred in the cathedral. In 1796 a coffin supposed to contain the remains of Columbus were taken to Havana, Cuba. In 1898 the coffin was carried to Spain. Many now believe, that a mistake was made, and that the ashes of the great discoverer yet lie in the cathedral at Santo Domingo". A significant statement in the history is: "The great discoverer never knew that he had found a new world."

It is a fact that Columbus never touched the main land of North America on his first or on his three subsequent voyages. He touched one of the Bahama Islands on Oct. 12, 1492, although it is not known which one until this day. The original purpose of Columbus was to open a trade route to Asia and the East Indies, and he never swerved from it, although he met with great discouragements on all four of his trips. At one time he was sent home to Spain in chains.

If there is one lesson above a nother that Americans should learn from the man who made it possible for a new world to be peopled, it is that of perseverance. Columbus' determination was his contribution to the success of his four expeditions. Others aided him materially. He could not have succeeded alone; but it was he alone who had grit and grace enough to stick it out until results were forth coming. And it was the perseverance of Columbus that attracted the co-operation of others.

Determination, however would not have availed anything, unless the great discoverer had been going in the right direction. So at least three lessons should be learned from Columbus on this the 420 anniversary of his great accomplishment—the necessity of determination, the ability to get and hold the aid of others, and sufficient knowledge and wisdom to know we are going in the right direction.

The business revival the country will be as great according to present prospects if the railroads of the country are able to furnish cars to transport the large harvests which are now being gathered. California hasa ready suffered many millions of dollars on account of car shortage in which to ship the large grape crop of that state. Millions of dollars worth of fine grapes are reported to be rotting on the vines on account of no facilities for shipping.

OPPORTUNITIES EVERYWHERE.

There is no disputing the fact that opportunities are everywhere, especially in the South. It is here that the greatest and most diversified natural resources is vident, and their conservation is being carried out at a rapid rate, expanding with the days. Virgin fields of numerous varieties is being explored with a view to immediate development, which offers opportunities hitherto not dreamed of. With her many hundred miles of coast line, and the campaign now being carried on for a deep water port at Mobile, will give the state prestige not hitherto enjoyed.

THE SOUTH AND THE TARIFF

The Southern Tariff Association is holding a celebration in Washington and is "expressing jubilation over the tariff." It is its "purpose to extend the thanks of Southern producers for the fair and generous treatment" which they received at the hands of the framers of the tariff act, remarks the New York Sun.

"It seems almost paradoical that Southerners should be celebrating a high protective tariff," this newspaper continues, "when tariff history is recalled."

The New York Sun ought to know as well as we know that the "Southern Tariff Association" is Southern in name only. It does not represent the South or the feeling of the South. We have men in the South who favor a high protective tariff. We have members of Congress from the South who bootleg their votes in exchange for protection for some of the products of their home states. We even have a "Southern Tariff Association," which, if we remember correctly, is headed by none other than our old friend, John Henry Kirby, one time of Peach Tree Village, Tyler County, Texas, and lately of Houston, Texas, and Boston, Mass., with stop-over privilege at Washington, D. C. and New York, N. Y.

John Henry was educated for the law, but drifted off the track and became a promoter. He describes himself in "Who's Who in America" as president of the Kirby Lumber Co., capitalized at $10,000,000, and claiming title to ten billion feet of standing lumber and manufacturing a third of a billion feet of lumber annually.

John Henry is the "Southern Tariff Association." He has been so busy being that association that he did not have time to give to his duties as a member of the American committee on the Brazilian exposition, although one of his colleagues, in resigning from that committee, charged that John Henry did not hesitate to draw down his salary for the work he didn't do.

John Henry and his buddies may be celebrating the high protective tariff, but the Sun is wrong, woefully wrong, when it states that the South is celebrating any such event.

The South never has been and is not now for a high protective tariff. The South has something to sell abroad and it knows that it cannot sell it abroad with a tariff barrier erected that foreign goods cannot surmount. The South does not want a tariff. It wants a market. The South has been sound on the tariff issue in the past and it is sound on the issue today. It is against the Fordney-McCumber act as it was against the Payne-Aldrich act, the votes of Louisiana's Senators to the contrary notwithstanding.

On the whole, there are no members of Congress which are more susceptible to the pressure of their constituents than those of the South. We have some exceptions to the rule, but not many. The sentiments of the South on the tariff issue were voiced when the roll was called. There the New York Sun will find the true sentiment of the South, and it will not be found "extending thanks" for any treatment that it has received at the hands of the tariff tinkers at Washington.—Nashville Tennessean.

THE WORLDS WAY

A little child is born—a girl. It lives and, grows, and goes to school, and in time becomes a beautiful young lady who looks good to the eyes of men. She is a good girl, pure in thought and act, but richly endowed with the fire of youth and life. She is admired, petted, praised and courted by men—and envied by women. If she is wise and circumspect—a Soloman in petticoats—she may go through life without blemish in the eyes of the world. But if she makes one slip—commits even one small indiscretion—though the act may be innocent itself, her reputation is in the balance, with the chances ten to one it will be ripped to tatters. Such is the way of the world for women.

Another child is born—a boy. It too, develops into one of life and spirits, and pursues the way of most boys who travel the road of man's estate. From boyhood to manhood there are many pitfalls for the unwary, into some of which he falls. There is a certain charm to these pitfalls—these illicit pleasures—which induces him to continue along the forbidden road. He makes many slips—commits many indiscretions—hits the high spots as he rushes through life. But his reputation does not suffer—he earns another instead. He becomes a man of the world, and is considered a live wire. Society beams, he yawns, and God frowns. Such, also is the way of the world—for men.—Sylacauga News.

MERELY ANOTHER CASE OF GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY

Ambitious young men, trying to get ahead, will be interested in the story of the 17-year-old railroad station agent at North Redwood, Min. His name, Richard W. Sears. Dick kept his eyes open for opportunities. Finally one came.

A shipment of watches arrived and was refused by the local dealer to whom they were consigned. Dick wrote the makers and arranged to sell the time-pieces.

For customers he wrote railroad friends up and down the line. In his letters he did not offer something for nothing, painting golden promises. Instead, he said he had good watches which he would sell at a very small margin of profit. In describing them he went into elaborate details, which was the next best thing to putting the watches before the eyes of the prospective buyer.

The watch deal proved so successful that young Sears quit his railroad job and went into the mail order business. All this was in 1884.

The business started by young Sears is now known as Sears Roebuck and Co. Last year when its sales fell off heavily, it pulled through with over over $178,000,000 of orders.

All this was done by mail among the firm's 7,000,000 customers. Its catalogues, in describing articles, still go into minute details as when young Sears was marketing his first gold watches.

Isn't it inspiring to consider an accomplishment of such size? Here was a young fellow, marooned in a small village, so dull that only two trains a day went through. It was about the last place on earth that most of us would look for a big opportunity. And after thinking it over, it will be realized that Sears did not find his opportunity, he created it.

Opportunity is in the individual, Geographical location has very little to do with it.

And what Sears did, starting in his dusty telegraph office, can be duplicated today by other young men, provided they have vision and "the real stuff" in them.—Anniston Star.

THE PROHIBITION FIGHT IN OHIO

One of the most important prohibition battles ever staged in this country is now under way in Ohio.

The Ohio state supreme court recently ruled that the voters of that state may pass on the question of amending the state constitution so as to permit the sale of 2.75 beer and of light wine.

If Ohio can be swung over to endorse a light wine and beer proposal, it will have an important effect in influencing the elections of a number of other states along this line. This fact is realized by both the Anti-Saloon League and by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Therefore, both are working hard.

Vast amounts of money will be spent for campaign purposes in the Buckeye State this fall. The hope of the "wets" lies in the larger cities of the state, and especially in Cincinnati, while the "drys" are confident that the smaller towns and the rural sections will return their customary "dry" majorities in such volume as to overwhelm the cities "wet" vote. The result will be awaited with intense interest through the nation.—Gadsden Journal.

UNCLE SAM QUILTS BARTENDING

Uncle Sam has quit his job as bartending in the great sea-going public.

No longer will wine lists be handed out by the stewards of American ships.

The President of the United States, after having permitted the Constitution to be flouted by one of his bureau heads and intimate friends for a period of 19 months, now says the law must be obeyed—even by Uncle Sam.

It must be a distressing thing to Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board, who has counted heavily upon the booze revenue to make a showing on his passenger ships.

It must be galling to him to realize that he is not in such favor at the White House that he can have the Constitution shelved.

In order to place the best possible face on the situation, the Department of Justice hands down an opinion that covers all shipping, domestic and foreign, that enters American ports or territorial waters.

If American ships cannot carry liquor, it rules,

To practical men the right of the American government to extend its jurisdiction to the vessels of other nations presents a delicate question that the courts will have to decide. At first blush, it would appear that the vessels flying foreign flags are in the same class as the residences of foreign diplomats, and that if the right of possession of intoxicants cannot be challenged in the latter instance, no more can it in the former, where Treasury Department safeguards against disposition are taken while the vessels are within the three-mile limit.

Foreign governments, we take it will be unwilling to accept the ruling of the Attorney-General without protest.—Nashville Tennessean.

When we falter in the doing of any good and great deed which impresses itself upon us, there is always something which urges us onward and bouys up in th moments of doubt and uncertainty. This is the urging of the moniter within—the better part of man which is in conflict with the doubt and uncertain part of our being. It has often saved the day for many an individual when they felt constrained to do some thing, which later proved their conclusions to be correct. It frequently happens that our first impression as to the manner of doing some one thing is the impression to act upon. When we falter, there takes place an argument between the dual natures in each individual, and if allowed to proceed to any great length, doubt and uncertainty comes in and we hardly know which course to pursue. To act on the first impression is usually a safe rule to follow.

Work on the pike east out of Hartselle is progressing rapidly. On the completed part of the road, over a hundred yards of gravel and sand has been delivered along the way to use after the asphalt has been laid down. The sand, which contains considerable gravel is being gotten from the bed of cotaco creek, east of the present work. The final work of spreading the asphalt will begin at once it is said, and the sand as a top dressing, which will mark a radical departure in the process for road building in the county. There are many other roads also under construction in the county which call for asphalt and sand as a top dressing. The asphalt acts as a binder, and the sand forms a hard surface.

During the cool crisp days of November, when the corn is in the shock and the shrill whistle of Bob White is heard from without the fields and meadows where grain has been harvested, it is a fine tonic to stand and listen and inhale the dew laden air of the morning, as the weeds and undergrowth is topped with a white coating of jack frost, fresh from the nature painter. There is ozone enough in a few inhalations to revive the most drooping spirits and give another lease on life. It is a tonic A La Supreme, and unresponsive indeed is the individual who will not be benefitted by this simple life-giving remedy.

If every one could eliminate from the mind all that is not in accord with the perfect functioning of the body, and rest secure that no ill will is harbored toward any one, and on this wise conduct the affairs of the earthly pilgrimage, there would not be nearly so many premature gray hairs adorn the temple, and the wrinkles on the brow would not be nearly so well pronounced. We spend most of the time climbing the mountains which never appear, and cross the deep ravines which never materialize. A life in perfect harmony with nature, avoiding the discords, would be perfect and sublime, because nature is true.

Roasting peanuts and sweet potatoes around a warm fire during the cold winter months may not call for the exercise of any great amount of science, but it furnishes a world of satisfaction to children and grown ups as well. With the addition of pop corn the interest in such proceedings is greatly enhanced.

The horn of plenty is everywhere in evidence. What a contrast to other sections of the world, where wars and rumors of war are in constant repetition. America is the purse holder of the nations, and Woodrow Wilson is staging a comeback.

If the much talked of 14 points had been agreed upon by all the nations of earth, and an energetic effort to make them function had been made, there would now be no dispute over the Dardanelles, and the Turkish situation would not be such a talked of affair. It was a Democratic measure, fostered and originated by a Democratic president; therein lay the greatest objection to the measure.

Good Night Stories

BOBBY ONION MAKES A MIS-TAKE.

"WELL!" exclaimed a sharp voice. "What's the big idea? Move over and give me more room."
 "I would be only too glad to do so if I could," replied the neighbor. "But the soil around me seems so terribly hard that it is all I can do to breathe."
 "Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed the first voice. "Who ever heard of an onion trying to breathe! Oh, but that's funny! What a good joke to tell Willy Angleworm!"

"I can't seem to understand what you're talking about," said the little bulb. "But if I've said anything that really gives you pleasure I'm truly glad."

This was too much for Bobby Onion, and he laughed until tears came into his eyes.

"This is a good joke! But I suppose you're so new in the game that you don't know very much about the life around here."

The little bulb agreed that she was new in that part of the country, but said she was willing to learn if her neighbor would be kind enough to help her.

"Well, that's another good one!" cried Bobby Onion. "I don't suppose you even know that you're an onion, do you?"

"Oh, but This Is Rich!"

When the little bulb shook her head, Bobby Onion laughed all the harder and exclaimed:

"Oh, but Willy Angleworm will enjoy this joke! I'm sure!" and he planted a tiny seed that rested nearest him and laughed all the harder. "That's the first time I ever heard of such a thing. Didn't you ever stop to think what you were going to be when you grew up? Well, of all things! Why, my friend, an onion is an onion!"

"But I was told—" began the poor little bulb, when Bobby Onion interrupted her.

"Never mind what you were told, folks may say a lot of things. But just the same, I repeat that an onion is an onion any place you find it."

"Well, I don't mind being an onion," laughed the little bulb. "But what ever I am I shall do my best to bring forth the finest blossoms I can bear."

"Oh, dear, but this is rich!" Bobby Onion cried, and when Willy Angleworm put in his appearance Bobby Onion was still laughing. "Here's an onion who claims she is going to have wonderful blossoms—did you ever hear of the like? An onion bearing beautiful flowers. Ho! Ho!"

"I don't know about that!" chimed in Willy Angleworm. "This little bulb has told the truth. You will have wonderful blossoms," Bobby Onion, the joke is on you this time. Let me introduce you to Miss Field Lily."

Bobby Onion was so surprised and so ashamed of himself that he tried to hide his head, but Miss Field Lily assured him she didn't blame him.

"We both come from bulbs, you see. My bulb is rougher than the one you have. But, just the same, we both are good for something. You onions please the palate of many people, while I try to please their eyes."

"It takes all kinds to make the world," said Willy Angleworm, "and as I'm the soil mixer, I must get busy, and without another word he loosened the earth around the two bulbs and went on his way."

"If I spend more time working and less making fun of others I'd be better off, perhaps," and Bobby Onion started to grow in earnest.

FARM DEPARTMENT HAS 'MADE MONEY'

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 12.—Special.—During the past four years total receipts of the state department of agriculture have been $536,386.26 while total disbursements have been $250,856.27, leaving a balance of $335,529.96 which went into the general fund, according to a financial report delivered to the executive department and made public today by W. B. Allgood, chief clerk of the agricultural department.

The year of 1919-1920 was one of the best in the history of the department and during that year total collections from all sources amounted to $160,045.17. The worst year of the four was 1920-21 when the collections dropped to $11,180.57. Total disbursements for the year which saw the smallest collections were greater than any other year, the total being $72,279.73.

During the year period Dr. B. B. Boss, state chemist, analyzed 2,368 samples of foods, feeds and drugs which were collected by agents of the agricultural department in all sections of Alabama. The work was greatly increased during the year 1921-22 under the new laws which permitted wider latitude to the chemist in the handling of samples.

The Hi-Y Club of the A. H. S. had a banquet Monday night in the city Y. M. C. A. Dining Room. Mr. Rigley, state secretary of Boys' Work, was among the guests of the occasion.

The room was beautifully decorated in the brilliant flowers of the season. A unique feature was a high seat of honor in the center of the room for Mr. Rigley.

The banquet was served by the friends of the club. Afterward lively music was enjoyed during the banquet. The numbers were furnished by Miss Earline Johnson, Violin and Elizabeth Carpenter, piano. After the dessert was served there were popular songs and Hi-Y songs.

Then Dr. Goodwin made an instructive speech on the three qualities which constitute a model man. The guests of the evening were introduced, which was followed by a few words of advice and encouragement from the Advisory Council. Mr. Rigley made a splendid address which gave the club a great inspiration. He told of the things which were necessary to make the club a success, and the benefits derived from the club. This speech was considered one of the best of the evening.

The following speeches were made by the officers of the club.

Presidential Address, Martin Briscoe.

What the Hi-Y Is, Robert Nebrig.

Meaning of the Hi-Y Pin, Robert Warren.

Last Year's Hi-Y Conference, Fitzhugh Hobart.

The meeting was brought to a close with a very enjoyable speech from Mr. Randolph, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Jud. Tucker. Jud. Tucker says he doesn't see how you are going to get rid of class distinctions when so many people are landlords and so many others are tenants.

ROB LIGON STORE FOR SECOND TIME

The Ligon store on Second Avenue was burglarized again Wednesday night, the robbers effecting an entrance by boring a number of holes in the back door, just above the bar with which the door is fastened. When the store was opened for business today it was discovered at once that there was considerable merchandise missing.

Most of the merchandise taken consists of shoes and ready-to-wear apparel.

The police were notified, an inventory taken as near as possible of the missing merchandise, and investigation is being made with a view of locating it. This is the second time this store has been burglarized within the past 60 days. In the first instance the goods were recovered and the thieves landed in jail and are now serving sentence in the penitentiary.

Greatest Pleasure in Life. The wearing of a beautiful kimono was stated to be the greatest pleasure of 980 women of Tokyo, in response to a questionnaire sent out by the Hochi, a Tokyo daily. Attending the theater came next with 120 women calling it their greatest joy. One hundred and fifty women answered "visiting friends" as the greatest satisfaction of life. The more simple-minded 100 mothers replied that "good things to eat" are the greatest sources of their heart's delight. The more sophisticated 50 answered "beauty of nature" as affording them the maximum of pleasure. Only 20 women confessed their great love for sex-life.

Russian Disputes English Claim And Says He Invented War Tanks

(By International News Service) MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—A trial court in England decided that Winston Churchill invented the military tank. Later there was some proof that Kitchener thought of it first. And now comes a Russian one A. A. Potemkin, claiming to have invented the tank, to have made a tank and to have operated it long before the date of either British claim.

The priority of Churchill bears the date of March, 1916. The Kitchener claim is earlier—October, 1914—but his project was not realized. At the very outbreak of the war, in August, the principle of the tank was put forward in Russia, and before the end of the year 1914 a model was made. On May 18, 1915, a trial of a completed tank was made at Riga and was the subject of a military report (No. 4,563) bearing the date, June 20, 1915.

In the Izvestia office in Moscow are two documentary proofs of this claim. One is a photograph of the tank from a newspaper clipping and an article in Novo Vremya, No. 14,572, dated Sept. 29, 1916, quoting the military report which describes the tank and its operation.

The military report (made June 1915) is signed by General Kaubitz and reads as follows:

"It is proved that this machine, then called 'Vezdehod' (Going Everywhere) goes over deep sand at the rate of 25 versts an hour.

At the average rate of speed it has crossed a ravine three metres wide, one and one fourth metres deep and with sides sloping at an angle of 40 degrees. All considerable roughness of territory it took at full speed. Its turning about was highly satisfactory. In general it

COURT MAY ADJOURN.

The Morgan County Court has been in session here this week, running "on one leg" so, to speak, on account of the fact that the federal court is in session at Huntsville, and therefore many who would otherwise be here looking after legal matters, are detained at Huntsville, will in all probability adjourn today for this term, and resume its labors on Monday the 6th of November. Judge Lowe is of the opinion that all interests can best be conserved by this course, and will act accordingly.

If food does not digest it turns into poisons which form gas. This often presses on heart and other organs causing a nervous, restless feeling. WHAT is there about wings that enlists our imagination—wings of a bird—the wings of Cupid resting yet ever restless—the wings on the newest bandeau that frames the loveliest face, HER face? Is it the suggestion that they—like the days and years—may fly away? Or is it because in thinking of Cupid, glancing at the bird or admiringly glimpsing HER face HE thinks of the high, wide, lovely spaces of the sky and so of the infinity and the duration of TRUE love which does not fly away?

The Theater Guild has acquired a new romantic comedy by Franz Molnar, author of "Lilom," which the Guild made so successful last season. "The Guardsman" is the title of the new play which will be produced during the present season with Joseph Schildkraut, who also played "Lilom," in the title role.

Never has New York been so restless in the matter of homes as this fall. The gas company reports that 46,725 families moved in the two or three days covering the first of October, according to the gas meter changes required. This, of course, does not include the thousands who live in residence hotels, or in "quarter-in-the-slot" gas meter apartments. Last year, only 31,242 meters had to be locked and unlocked.

The institution of the chop house has passed in New York. The superficial observer blames it upon prohibition; but the melancholy old-time chophouse patron scoffs at this as a complete explanation. "It's the women!" he declares. "Women are everywhere these days. They eat everywhere just as they work everywhere. A chop house was a man's eating place. The food, the atmosphere, the discussions, were all the kind men like. Now every restaurant keeper caters to women in his choice of menu. Women never did appreciate good thick mutton chops. And the whole atmosphere of the old chop houses has disappeared along with the limited bill of fare. Women's entrance into business has killed the institution."
